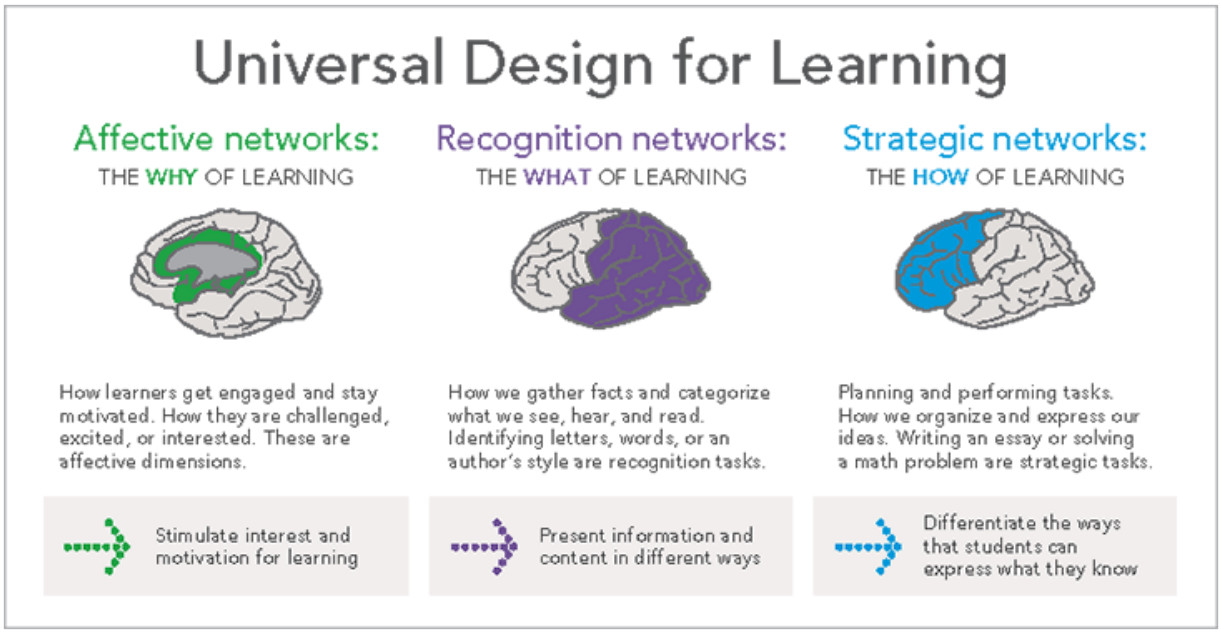
UDL is based on extensive brain research. The foundations of the framework are based on the three major brain networks that are involved with learning.



To support diverse affective networks we can:

To support diverse recognition networks we can:

To support diverse strategic networks we can: